

A Garden for Meditation

A NATURAL PRACTICE SPACE BEHIND THE INSTITUTE

Shamar Rinpoche's stupa is now complete; in order to make this area a new exterior place of practice, Jigme Rinpoche plans to pursue the development of the natural site to create diverse spaces: eight stupas, a large prayer wheel, and a circumambulation path connecting all of Dhagpo's stupas.

This second project will be followed by the construction of eight stupas. A stupa symbolizes the different aspects of the path toward enlightenment. In the Tibetan Buddhist tradition, there are eight specific forms that recall great moments in the life of Buddha Shakyamuni. Emblems of peace and harmony, these edifices house wishing prayer scrolls, precious substances, and relics of great masters.

TAKING PART IN BUILDING THE MEDITATION GARDEN IS:

Building supports for practice that will transcend the ages and be used by thousands of individuals.

Connecting to the possibility of enlightenment through the presence of the Buddha and of Kunzig Shamar Rinpoche.

Making available a pleasant and covered space for everyone to meditate in their own way.

Participating in the diffusion of peace and harmony through emphasizing inner observation and an altruistic state of mind.
